This family was originally of Hampshire. In 1284, John le Rich, of Rich Place, Hants, flourished; his great-grandson, Richard Rich, an opulent mercer of London, was sheriff of that city, 1441; his great-grandson, Sir Richard Rich, Solicitor-Gen. to Henry VIII., was, upon the accession of Edward VI., created in Feb. 1547 Baron Rich, of Leeze, co. Essex, and in Nov. of that year was constituted Lord High Chancellor of England, and in 1564 founded a Grammar School at Felstead in Essex; his great-grandson, Robert Rich, P.C., 2nd Earl of Warwick, a very distinguished personage during the Civil War, was Lord High Admiral of England, and Lord-Lieut. of Norfolk and Essex; the Long Parliament conferred upon him the exceptional honour of voting that he should be created a Duke, and he would have been promoted to that dignity had the treaty between Charles I. and the Parliament been completed. The Earl's younger brother, Sir Henry, K.G. (owner of Holland House, Kensington), the most accomplished courtier of his time, having in 1622 been created Baron Kensington, was successively employed to negotiate a marriage between Prince Charles (afterwards Charles I.) and the Spanish Infanta, and to sound the French Court regarding a consort for the Prince: in 1624, he was advanced to the dignity of Earl of Holland; he subsequently took up arms for the Royal Cause, for which in 1649 he suffered decapitation before the gates of Westminster Hall. The Earldoms of Warwick and Holland became united in 1673, and in 1759 they expired. Charles, 4th son of Sir Edward Rich, 3rd son of the 2nd Baron Rich, was created a baronet in 1675, which title passed by special limitation to his son-in-law, Robert Rich, a Lord of the Admiralty, and M.P. for Dunwich, temp. William III.; his 2nd son, Field Marshal Sir Robert, the 4th baronet, was successively M.P. for Dunwich, Beeralston, and St. Ives; Col. 4th Dragoons, and Governor of Chelsea Hospital; he died 1768, and was succeeded by his son Sir Robert, 5th baronet, at whose death in 1785 the baronetcy expired, and the estates devolved upon his only daughter Mary Frances, wife of the Rev. Charles Bostock, LL.D. (descended from Sir Osmer de Bostock, temp., William I.), of Shirley House, Hants, who in 1790 assumed, by royal license, the surname and arms of Rich, and was in 1791 created a baronet.

The former baronetcy of 1620 (claimed by the present holder of the 1809 creation as 12th Bt., which claim, however, has not been officially established at the Herald's College), belonged to the old Kentish family, originally called Rookehurst and later Roobertes, and apparently became extinct on the demise in 1745 of Sir Walter, 6th baronet, who left an only daughter, Jane, who married the 3rd Duke of St. Albans. About 1775 the Duchess believed she had discovered the descendants of Thomas, second son of the 1st baronet, seated at Brightfieldstown, Roberts' Cove, co. Cork; and the title was assumed by the then head of that family, Randal, and subsequently by his eldest son Thomas, to whom, however, a new patent of Baronetcy was passed in 1809. The ancient property of Glassenbury, Cranbrook, Kent, which had then been in the direct line for nearly seven centuries, was left by the Duchess of St. Albans to the second son of this Sir Thomas, viz., Col. Thomas Walton Roberts, J.P. (High Sheriff of Kent 1879), who d. 1882, and devised the said property by will to his nephew, Major John Roberts Atkin-Roberts (Club, Junior United Service), the present owner.

The original family name of the Stockenström family was Anderson. The founder of the family, when Prime Minister to the King of Sweden, continued his fealty to the monarch during a troublous time when all other friends had forsaken him. In reference to this service the King remarked that his faithful servant was like the "stump of a tree, in the midst of a torrent, with all branches but one torn off," and therefore granted him a name, and armorial ensigns and motto, in accordance therewith. The 1st baronet, Sir Andries, was Lieut.-Governor at the Cape of Good Hope, and Captain in the regiment of Corsican Rangers.

Sir George, the 3rd baronet, was fined £1,460 for his loyalty to Charles I. He surrendered his father's patent of creation, and had a new one granted to himself, with remainder to his second son, John, and his heirs male, intending thereby to exclude his first son. The elder son, however, on his father's decease, claimed and enjoyed the baronetcy created by the original patent, so that there were two baronetcies in the family till on the death (without issue) of Sir John, 6th baronet under the old creation, they became united in Sir John, 3rd baronet of the new. The 11th baronet, having been for twenty years Physician to the Northampton Infirmary, took Holy Orders, and subsequently became an eminent preacher.

The family of Thorold is of great antiquity in Lincolnshire, its ancestors having been Sheriffs thereof previous to the Conquest. A Theroldus de Buckenhuld, Sheriff of Lincoln in 1052, during his shrievalty, gave his manor of Spalding for a cell in the Abbey of Crowland. Sir William, the 1st baronet, was knighted by James I. when but sixteen years old; he suffered greatly for his loyalty to Charles I., and paid to the sequestrators of his estate the sum of £4,460. The 4th and 9th baronets each represented Lincolnshire in Parliament.

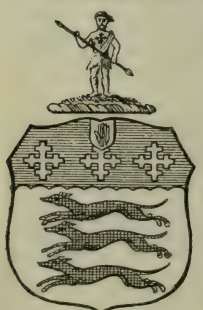
Daughter living of 9th Baronet—Katherine (Lady Radcliffe): m. 1854, Sir Joseph Perceval Pickford Radcliffe, 3rd Bt. Residences, Rudding Park, Knaresborough; Royton Hall, Oldham.



The family of Tichborne, which was of great importance in Hampshire before the Conquest, derives its name from the river Itchen, at the head of which it had estates; hence it was called De Itchenborne, since corrupted into Tichborne. Sir Benjamin de Tichborne, Knt., Sheriff of Southampton, on hearing of the death of Queen Elizabeth, immediately repaired to Winchester, and there proclaimed King James VI. (of Scotland) as King of England. In 1621 he was created a baronet, the honor of knighthood having been previously conferred upon three of his sons, while his fourth son, Henry, was subsequently knighted. Sir Henry, the 3rd baronet, hazarded his life in defence of Charles I. in several enterprises, and his estates were sequestered by the Parliamentarians. After the Restoration he was successively Lieut. of the New Forest and Lieut. of Ordnance. The 9th baronet assumed the additional surname of Doughty. In 1869 the title and estates of the 12th baronet were claimed by a person who came from Australia, and asserted himself to be Roger, eldest son of Sir James, 10th baronet. The family, believing that Roger had been lost at sea, refused to acknowledge the claimant, who thereupon became plaintiff in the celebrated cause of Tichborne v. Lushington. After a trial, in 1872, which lasted several months, the claimant elected to be nonsuited, and the presiding judge committed him to prison for perjury. For this offence he was indicted: and at the memorable trial at bar, which lasted from May 1873 till Feb. 1874, he was found to be Arthur Orton, the son of a butcher at Wapping, and not Roger Tichborne, and sentenced to fourteen years' penal servitude. Arthur Orton died in 1898, having in 1895 admitted his identity.

The noble family of Vane, the records of which have been kept at the College of Arms since the earliest visitations, is descended from Sir Henry Vane, knighted at the battle of Poitiers 1356. Another Knight of this family, Sir Ralph Vane, was made a Knight-Banneret by Edward VI., and according to a patent of 4 Edward VI., on record, he was subsequently granted "the order, state, rank, honour, and dignity of a Baronet," but without any provision for succession, and together with the Manor of Penshurste. The family divided into two main branches in the persons of the two sons of Sir Henry Vane, of Raby; Sir Henry Vane, the younger, becoming ancestor of the Vanes, Dukes of Cleveland (now Barons Barnard); the second son, Sir George, becoming ancestor of the Vanes of Hutton, Baronets—the Manor of Hutton being held in capite of the Sovereign,—and in the female line of the Marquesses of Londonderry. The present Baronet is 17th in lineal male descent from Sir Henry Vane of Poitiers and 7th in descent from Sir Henry Vane of Raby, an eminent statesman of the reigns of James I. and Charles I. Sir Frederick Fletcher Vane, 2nd baronet, sat successively as M.P. for Winchelsea and Carlisle.

The name of this family is supposed to be derived either from Walsham le Willows in Suffolk, or Walsham St. Mary in Norfolk, in both of which counties, as in Cambridgeshire, the Walshams were of note, and often of knightly rank, from the end of the 11th to the beginning of the 18th century. The Walshams of Knill represent a branch that settled in Radnorshire about 400 years ago, through the marriage of John Walsham with Mary, granddaughter and heiress of Sir Jenkin Harvey of Llanvair, Knight. From this marriage lineally descended John Walsham, who married Barbara, granddaughter and heiress of John Knill, Esq., of Knill Court, M.P. for Radnor, temp. Philip and Mary, and was the direct ancestor, in the ninth degree, of the present baronet. The 1st baronet received his baronetcy as being the eldest coheir and representative of Gen. Sir Thomas Morgan, Bt., whose title, created 1660, became extinct on his death, 1768.

At fourteen he was apprenticed to Mr. Newton, druggist, at Exeter. After serving seven years, he became a traveller in the drug trade, and subsequently established himself in London as a chemist. He afterwards became a hop-merchant, and was chosen Alderman, served as a Sheriff, and in the year of the Peace, 1815, was elected Lord Mayor of London, to which office he was re-elected the following year. He also sat as M.P. for London (L) 1816-43. During his mayoralty he was bold and fearless. On one occasion, after a lawless mob had shot a man on Snow Hill, and were approaching the Exchange, he, with only seven others, rushed through that building, and held the rioters in check, while he arrested several of the ringleaders. He took an active part in the cause of Queen Caroline: he accompanied her through Calais and Dover, on her journey to London in 1820, and placed his house in South Audley Street at her disposal. His fortune was, after much litigation, augmented on the death of Jemmy Wood, the banker, of Gloucester, to the extent of £250,000. Among these possessions was the estate of Hatherley Court, in Gloucestershire, a fine old ivy-mantled mansion, and from its name his second son, William Page, who was Lord High Chancellor 1868-72, selected his title.

THE KNIGHTAGE.

 For WIDOWS OF KNIGHTS, see page 854.

Names of Peers and Baronets who have received the honour of Knighthood will not be found in this list, but are arranged alphabetically in their respective sections.

A list of the Knights of the Garter, Thistle, and St. Patrick, is given separately; also a List of Members of the Order of Merit.

Particulars concerning Indian gentlemen appear under the initial letter of the first component part of their names, or under their territorial title.

For events that have very recently occurred see "Occurrences during Printing."
